Even though the Boral stand was clearly the most popular place to visit on the day, there were also pig races, an ice-skating rink, wood chopping competitions, a medieval display for people wanting a selfie with a Prince (who skipped the coronation that weekend), local music and an impressive choice of warm food and local produce.

We can't wait for the 2024 event and hopefully next year the temperature will be slightly warmer – and we don't have to drive home in a snow storm!!

IQA young members site tour

Recently, the Young Members Network from The Institute of Quarrying Australia (IQA) had an incredible time at our Peppertree Quarry and Marulan South site tour!

There was a fantastic lineup of presenters that included the Institute of Quarrying Australia, Sandvik, and Sitech. It was inspiring to see the 'Women In Quarrying' group showcase emerging females who will soon be making strides in our industry. We provided a delicious lunch and had a great time connecting over our shared passion for quarrying.

Tallong Apple Day.

On Sunday May 7, Boral people from Peppertree Quarry and Marulan South Limestone braved the arctic chill to set up a stand at the Tallong Apple Day event. Boral has been a proud major supporter of Apple Day for 14 years and is always a popular stop off point for people attending the festivities.

Besides being able to put on a Boral hard hat and have a photo with the bobcat, both young and old alike got super competitive in the weight guessing of the granodiorite rock and how many rocks in the jar competitions. People got their calculators to try and find the magic rock amount formula, and some of the rock weight guesses went up to 10 kilograms!!! It wouldn't be apple day if you didn't have a crack at the 'throw the apple on the board' competition run by local legend Bruce.
